The Essence of Grief: The Presence of Absence

With the death of a loved one, grievers experience a profound sense of absence. Our clients' reactions to the emptiness that now exists is directly related to their attachment to the deceased. In this workshop we will utilize attachment theory as a lens for understanding and supporting our clients through their grief journey.

Topics:

- The relationship between attachment, love, and loss
- Revising expectations of what grief looks like in the first, second and subsequent years
- Supporting our clients as they learn to “live” and “grieve” simultaneously

Presented by Fredda Wasserman, MA, MPH, LMFT, CT,
Special Projects Director at OUR HOUSE Grief Support Center
